THE LOST TRAVELER'S CHILD
Ida Kennings

During the years of our genealogical hunts, most of us hear strange tales or legends that have survived the years. While I was in Indiana one spring searching for data on the Worley lines, I heard such a story which I want to repeat to you. The setting of the story was near a village of Delaware County, Indiana and it was at the time of the pioneer settlement of that place.

In these early days, it was the custom for everyone to extend hospitality to the travelers who were moving west to find a new home. They would be housed and fed by the farmers and villagers before continuing on their journey. If necessary the boys and men would spend the night in the hayloft or barn. The women took over the beds of the house. After all the travelers were usually very welcome since they brought along with them the news and gossip from points east and south, which the hosts were most eager to hear.

On one such night, as this story goes, the four-year old daughter of the traveling guests died tragically and unexpectedly. The parents grieved greatly over the death of their darling and their sadness was increased by the knowledge that they must leave the little new grave alone in a strange country and continue on their journey west. Sadly the father marked the location in that new sparsely-occupied pioneer cemetery. Carefully he noted where the cemetery lay and the natural landmarks of its situation. Together the bereaved parents vowed that they would return as soon as possible and visit that little grave. The kind-hearted settlers of the region, deeply affected by the grief of the parents and their sorrowful leave-taking, resolved to care for the grave. And this they did for many years.

But the years passed and the travelers did not return. Still so strong was the trust of the community in the intentions of the parents, it was believed that the travelers must have lost their way or become confused on their western journey. After all, the whole land was at that time a trackless wilderness and all could remember how landmarks had been lost and names changed since their own pioneer days. Perhaps the parents themselves had met misfortune or death. But surely somewhere, somehow, they had left the story of the lonely little grave with responsible people, who would wish to find it. So it became the custom in the place to tell visitors the story of "the lost traveler's child," hoping that the story would eventually reach the parents of the child or those in which they had placed their trust. Thus the pioneers kept alive the story and their descendants continued to tell it and care for the grave.

A few years ago a lady from Chicago visited the cemetery to take care of her father's grave. Too she had heard the story of the lost traveler's child and touched by it, she had the little grave raised and evergreens planted about it, to mark it more surely. This pleased the people, because they knew then that they had been successful in spreading the story afar. They still hope and expect that some day when the story is repeated, the listener will say, "Oh, yes, I remember my grandmother telling of the death of her little girl, while she was on her way west." Then perhaps the story will have reached its destination and then the travelers and the child will be lost no longer.

"The problem before the researcher is similar to that of an artist in putting together many pieces of a mosaic. He usually does not, however, have those pieces at hand, nor does he have a preconceived pattern, if he be objective. He must hunt through literally scores of books, hundreds of writings, and thousands of documents to find the little segments of the whole picture. These little segments in many cases are facts about people. Pick up any volume pertaining to history - whether it be political, economic or genealogical - turn to the index, and you will find a large proportion of the entries are names of people." from "The Scholar's Interest in Personnel Records", by Almon R. Wright of the National Archives in The American Archivist, July 1949.

NOTICES OF THE OCTOBER MEETING contained a special note which read, "Miss Lucy Mary Kellogg will conduct a 'workshop' on Connecticut sources for genealogical material at 1:00 P.M. in the auditorium, prior to the regular meeting at 2:00 P.M." This workshop session proved to be one of the most mutually helpful meetings the Society has ever known. Members presented their problems, or told of their on-the-spot experiences in research among the libraries and town or county archives of Connecticut, and Miss Ellis of the Burton Collection staff furnished a full truck load of volumes from the reserve section of the Library. Mr. Ashley a long time member, who is familiar from personal contact with most of the resources of the Nutmeg State, gave interesting data which revealed the inaccuracies of certain volumes, as well as instruction on how best to get information by mail.

The formal business meeting was preceded by the reading of a paper by Mrs. Douglas Nelson, of Royal Oak, who is an authority on antiques. This paper had been written and broadcast by her late husband, and was titled "Collecting the Furniture of Our Ancestors." It gave a history of the development of American furniture from the primitive to the modern, and included a facetious treatise on the symptoms, treatment and cure of the disease called "Collectivitis."

THE NOVEMBER MEETING continued the workshop plan which had proved such a satisfactory and helpful one the month before. So again the business meeting was prefaced by a round table discussion of how and where to search for ancestors in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Wentink and other members who have had great success and bitter disappointments in their visits to various localities in Pennsylvania, told of their experiences and answered many eager questions. Sixty minutes were all too short. However a period of equal interest followed when Mrs. John Keil, of Chatham, Ontario, Canada, spoke on the subject "Loyalist Settlers Up the Thames." She outlined her efforts to trace the lineage of the first Dolsen to settle in Chatham, from the time when his forebears were recorded in New York City under the name of Van Dalsen to the days when as Loyalists they migrated to Canada and became known as Dolsen. Mrs. Keil is incorporating this romantic history in a novel which she is writing, but to which she has not yet given a name. She read a chapter from this book which showed her knowledge of manners and customs of an early day, her skill in delineation of character, and her appreciation of significant events, all expressed with a charm of literary style which should make her writing popular.

IN MEMORY. Elbert E. Boyd, son of Lucetta Fuller Devol and James McCandless Boyd was born March 13, 1874 in Southeast Grove, near Crown Point, Indiana and died October 24, 1949 in Detroit, Michigan, following a heart attack. He attended Crown Point High School and Valparaiso Normal College. At about the turn of the century, he moved to Calumet, Mich. remaining in the copper country about twenty years, during which time he married Georgia Draper on June 3, 1909, at Baraga, Mich. Here too the children were born: Dorothy, Hugh, Ruth and Helen. The family came to Detroit in 1921 where Mr. Boyd became associated as an accountant, with the Price, Waterhouse & Co. He remained with them until he retired in 1936. Devotion and faithfulness characterized all the relations of Elbert Boyd's life. He had been a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellow for a period of fifty years, having been affiliated with Calumet Lodge No. 134 and with Loyal Lodge No. 516 in Detroit. His interest in genealogy was awakened about twenty years ago when the family made a trip back to the old home in Indiana. This interest increased with the years and he has been actively engaged in discovering and charting his various lines ever since. Many of his manuscripts have been published in this magazine, particularly those relating to the Devol family. He joined the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research in May 1937; was treasurer from 1942 to 1944; and a loyal attendant at the meetings always. He is survived by his wife; daughters Mrs. L.F. Brown, Mrs. Stanley Bade, and Mrs. Gerald McArthur; and his son Hugh O Boyd. The burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

A LETTER TO THE EVERETT-HANSON COUSINS
Contributed by Dr. Edward S. Everett, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Dear Cousins:

I would like to write you a genealogical letter. It will really be merely passing on what I have been receiving from others. In the last few years I have been receiving oceans of material - over thirty thousand words for a crude guess - gathered by a few people who are interested in the early Everetts of our family. The two chief are -

Kenyon Stevenson. His wife's mother, who is still living at seventy-four, is a third cousin of ours - descended from Elizabeth (Everitt) Tomlinson.

Professor John A. Kelly of Haverford College. He is probably a fourth cousin of ours - descended from Benjamin Everitt a younger brother of our great great grandfather Joseph Everitt. He has access to early Quaker records, which are valuable because many of the early Everetts were Quakers.

There are a few others. But Kenyon Stevenson has done by far the greater part of assembling and organizing the material.

The family history so far as we know it, begins when a certain young man named Philip Everett becomes the indentured servant of Daniel Jenifer in the Province of Maryland. Indentured service is often called a form of slavery, but it was really rather different. It was often voluntary - for example many men sold themselves into service for six or seven years to get their passage across and a start on this side. And orphans would sometimes be indentured to relatives, who had a right to their services for a few years in return for bringing them up. If this was a typical case, Philip Everett, who was indentured in 1667, was a free man by 1674 and his master was required to make provision for him "to set himself up in independence." "Each man was entitled to fifty acres of land, an ox, a gun, two hoes, and a modest outfit of clothing, including a new suit of kersey, with stockings, French-fall shoes and a new hat."

We do not know the exact spot where Philip worked out his time, but we do know that Daniel Jenifer was an alderman of St. Mary's City (the old capital of Maryland) and that seems a good clue. I will include maps that will give you some idea of the region.

We lose track of Philip for a while, and the next record of family interest is the payment to Joseph Everett in Kent County in November of 1678 of 300 pounds of tobacco for military service against the Nanticoke Indians. Now we believe that this Joseph was Philip's brother. Unfortunately the page on which Philip's indentured service is recorded is mutilated and we do not know whether Joseph also paid for his passage across by serving time. But since brother Joseph is in Kent County in 1678, it may be about that time that Philip found his way from St. Marys to Kent.

In 1683 Philip appears again, and we learn a great deal all at once. He is living at a place called Quaker Neck on the Eastern Shore and many of his neighbors are Quakers; there are other Everetts in the region (perhaps two of them are his brothers); he is acquiring landed property; and he has probably been recently married.

I'll draw you a little map of Quaker Neck. It is on the "Eastern Shore" - that is on the east side of Chesapeake Bay. It is a very picturesque region, rich in traditions, much less changed in three centuries than most other parts of the country, and a very interesting place to have one's ancestors come from.

Probably the best picture of the Eastern Shore would be one of utter confusion - but a very gentle and easy-going confusion. The whole country is so cut up by water that one writer described the map as looking like a spray of maple leaves. They seem sometimes to call peninsulas islands; and I suppose on patches of land connected by swampy necks, or by bars that are under water at high tide the people really do not know whether they are on islands or on the mainland. And in Philip's day they may have been just as much confused about politics and religion. The government of Maryland was still at the old capital - St. Marys; it was ruled by Lord Baltimore and was Catholic in religion. But Kent Island - and Kent County partly - had been settled by Virginians who were Episcopalians and these had set up a system of parishes. There are many hints that they were not very loyal to Lord Baltimore. But again the region across the bay had been settled by Virginian rebels who were Puritans and who called their chief town Providence. (As a matter of fact before Philip died, these rebels were winning their struggle. Providence had become the capital, and was turning into Anapolis). But yet again, Philip's closest neighbors were Quakers and I suppose they looked toward William Penn and Pennsylvania.

But the confusion was really worse than that. The Delaware boundary - if there was a boundary - was hardly twenty-five miles away. Until 1657 Delaware belonged to Sweden. Then the Dutch took over; but in 1664 the Duke of York's men drove out the Dutch and Delaware became a part of New York. In 1682 when William Penn came over, he landed at Delaware (Newcastle) and claimed it as part of Pennsylvania. In 1684 Maryland sent a tiny armed force under Colonel George Talbot to seize Delaware for Lord Baltimore and Maryland. And a little later Delaware went back to William Penn - but as a separate possession - not part of Pennsylvania.

You must not think of these as bloody struggles. Actually what Col. Talbot did was to go with "three musketeers to the house of the widow Ogle (another ancestor of mine on my mother's side), Jonas Erskine, and Andreas Tille and told them if they would not forthwith yield obedience to the Lord Baltimore and own him to be their Proprietor and pay rent to him, he would turn them out ..." He put up a fort of logs thirteen feet by ten on the Widow Ogles's land; put in a man named Murray as commander and garrisoned it with "devout Catholics," who however "behaved peaceably toward the inhabitants among whom they frequently went." A few planters were driven out, but so far as I know no one was hurt. The Pennsylvania Assembly simply sent a protest and eventually that seems to have been enough.

If you find this confusing that is all right -- Philip was probably still more confused. In 1683 (just as this tiny war between the states was getting started) Philip Everett and his brother Joseph "patented a 50-acre tract in Kent County called Hatchbury described as being 'on the East-side of the Nor-east branch of Lankeford Bay, in a small creek called Watford (in some other places spelled Waterford) Creek.' About the same time, the two brothers bought an adjoining 100-acre tract just south of Hatchbury called Hansford which had been surveyed 6th July 1672 on the south side of Waterford Creek for Hans Hanson. This land lies on the northwest side of the peninsula still known as Quaker Neck north of the Chester River below Chestertown." (See map. I think of the inlet marked Philip's Creek as Waterford Creek. It would fit very well - but I do not really know.)

Perhaps the first thing to note is that there is a sort of colony of Everetts on the Eastern Shore. Not only does Philip have a brother Joseph - we find later that he also has a brother Joffery. And when we study the Maryland Archives we learn that there have been Everetts around for as much as twenty-two years before Philip and Joseph get their lands. Some of these early Everetts with the date of first appearance are John Everett in 1661, Nathaniel Evett or Evitt or Evatt in 1662 (possible but doubtful trace eleven years earlier) Francis Everett or Everard in 1681; and a certain ship's captain Thomas Everett or Everard of the Thomas and Susannah - most of the notices around 1690.

With so large a colony of Everetts beginning so early, there is a strong temptation to feel that one of them may have been the father of Joseph, Philip, and Joffery. I think some sort of relationship is probable, but we do not know what it is or even whether it exists.

The study of these early Everetts is very revealing of the world in which Philip Everett lived. For example there was constant Indian fighting with men drafted against their will and paid in "l. of Tob" - that is pounds of tobacco. This last item has been interpreted as meaning a scarcity of money. Actually there was a good deal of money both English and Spanish in circulation - plenty for pocket money and minor expenses. The real explanation was that there had been a great boom in tobacco farming. The first tobacco raisers had made their fortunes so rapidly that everybody wanted to grow tobacco. Other crops were neglected until the government became afraid of famine and forced the growing of some grain by law. There were no towns and few stores because everybody was making his fortune in tobacco. The whole business of the colony was to raise tobacco, ship it to England, and import English goods in exchange. Naturally pounds of tobacco became convenient money - taxes were paid, officers were paid, and many of the larger transactions were conducted with tobacco for money.

Not only does Philip have new land and relatives that we have not heard of before - he has also a wife named Barbara. Now this wife is almost certainly Barbara Hanson and we know a good deal more about her than we do about Philip himself. Some time ago we spoke of the Swedes in Delaware. Barbara came from these Swedes. Her grandfather was a colonel in the Swedish Army. We know nothing about his service, but it is plain from his dates that he could have been a member of the brilliant and victorious army of Gustavus Adolphus. His oldest son was born the same year that the Thirty Years War broke out, and was about twelve years old when Gustavus' famous campaign in the German Empire began. This oldest son, called Andrew Hanson, came to America in 1645 and settled on an island in the Delaware River. After about eight years he moved to Kent Island in Chesapeake Bay and died there. He left a widow Annicah, sons Hans and Frederick, and daughters Katteren and Margaret. About four months after his death a posthumous daughter was born and named Barbara. The date was October 1655. The next year Annicah married an Andrew Hellenga. The name is spelled in several ways - perhaps it is really Hellenga.

We suppose that Barbara grew up in this Hellenga-Hanson family but we hear more of other members than of Barbara. Just before she was three a little half-sister Sarah Hellenga was born. Just after she was three her step-father laid claim to 350 acres under the law that gave a settler 100 acres for himself and 50 acres for each member of his family. When she was about sixteen we begin to hear of brother Hans who was about nine years older than she was. In rapid succession he bought 200 acres of land, he petitioned to be naturalized, he patented the estate Hanford, and he began to be called Colonel Hanson. This last may mean that he served with distinction in the Indian wars - perhaps against the Nanticoques.

We have no record of Barbara's marriage, but it could hardly have been later than 1683 when she was twenty-seven or twenty-eight, and it might have been several years earlier. She married into a sort of Everett clan, for Philip and Joseph worked the estate jointly and there was another brother Joffery about whom we know only three things: that Philip owed him

1645 (about) Andrew Hanson settles at Tinicum Island on the Delaware

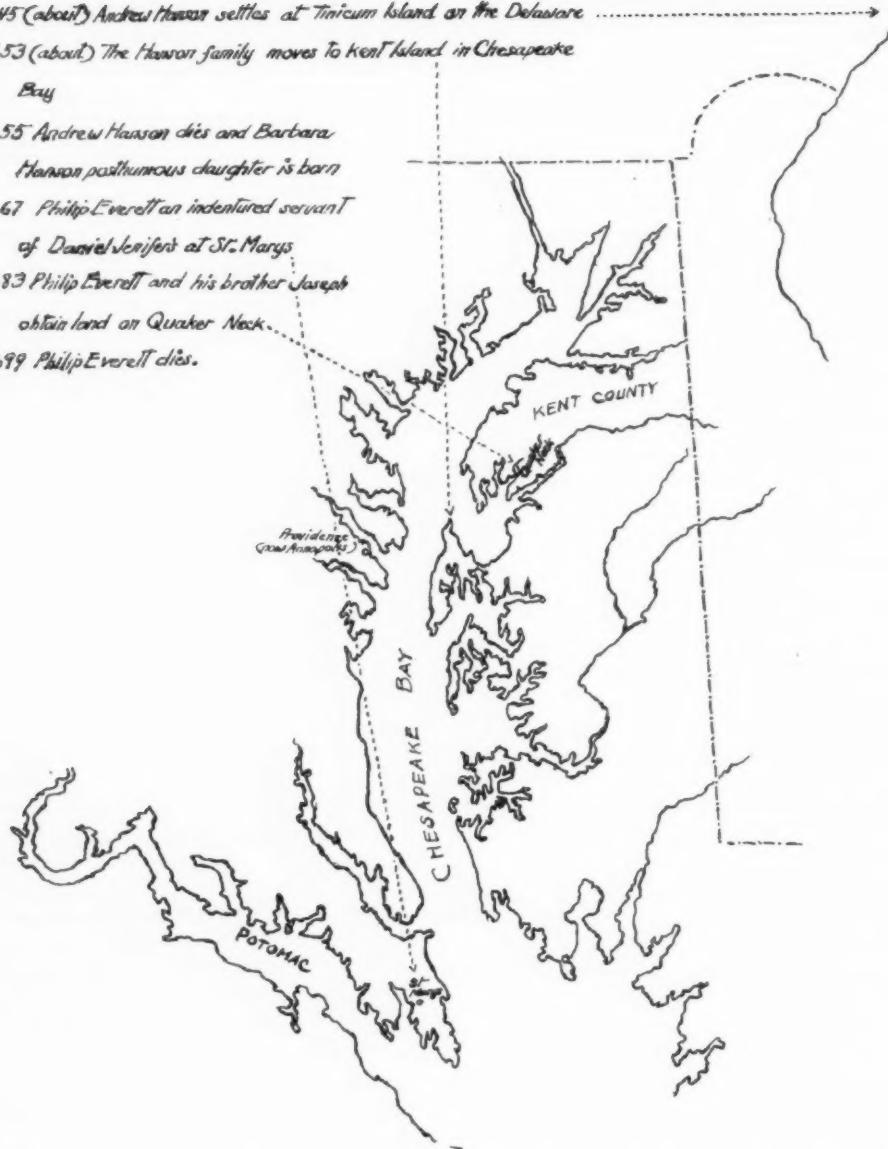

1653 (about) The Hanson family moves to Kent Island in Chesapeake Bay

1655 Andrew Hanson dies and Barbara Hanson posthumous daughter is born

1667 Philip Everett an indentured servant of Daniel Jenifer at St. Marys

1683 Philip Everett and his brother Joseph obtain land on Quaker Neck.

1699 Philip Everett dies.

2700 pounds of tobacco, that he left his blacksmith tools with Philip, and that he had "sons" (But the phrase "him or his sons" in Philip's will may mean merely that Joffery had gone off somewhere and Philip was providing for the event that an heir turned up.)

Philip seems to have become a respected member of the community. He was foreman of the Grand Jury of Kent County in 1686. In 1693 he was one of the overseers of the will of William Thomas, a Quaker - although he was not a Quaker himself. He seems to have belonged to St. Paul's Episcopal Parish. In 1687 his brother Joseph died leaving a son Joseph Jr. who was apparently too young to take charge and Philip seems to have been in possession of the land of both families.

All of this ended very abruptly. On May 8, 1698 he made a very short and simple will. Although he refers to himself as "of Sound Memory and Indifferent Good Health of Body" it was probably a death bed will, for he was buried just eight days later according to the records of St. Paul's Church near Tolchester.

Philip's will is so short that it does not help very much in our search for knowledge of ancestors. It divides the land between Philip's son Philip and Joseph's son Joseph - probably carrying out the understanding when the land was bought jointly. The wife, Barbara is in charge until young Philip grows up. The rest of his property is to be divided equally among his other children (he does not name them), after his debts to his brother Joffery and others have been taken care of. From later circumstances we know that his children were Philip, Barbara, Frances, and John, our ancestor, who was a baby or may not even have been born at the time of his father's death.

I hope this does not bore you too much. I can go on with our next ancestor (Philip's son John) in the same way if you find this interesting.

I am afraid you may find it rather confusing, and so I have added a sort of double chart - dates to the left and a map to the right which ought to help a good deal with the when and where.

Yours most truly,

Edward

His wife Mary died in 1736 and he afterward married, 2nd Catherine Thayer, widow of Zechariah Thayer, dau. of ----Thacher, 22 Sept. 1737, who died Sept. 6, 1767 and 3rd Susannah Sever, widow of Caleb Lyman, dau. of David Farnham, 20 Oct. 1767. All his children were by his first wife. He removed to Watertown about 1736, where he opened a store and purchased estates in that town, in Boston and elsewhere. His will, evidently written by himself, shows him to have been a wealthy man, and no scholar. He describes himself in this document, made 11th October, 1769, as "a shipwright old and infirm." Elsewhere he is described as "shop-keeper."

Minutes of the Will of Samuel Hunt

1. He gives his mansion house and other estates in Watertown to his son John, making provision for the comfortable subsistence of his wife, Susannah.
2. He gives his daughter, Mary Byles, a dwelling house at the north end of Boston, occupied by Mr. Josias Byles in Love St. (Now Tileston St.), and a negro man named Bristol.

 3. He gives to his daughter, Elizabeth Blanchard, wife of Joshua Blanchard, a bond for 45 pounds due from her husband and 133 pounds 6s 8d due from Samuel Hunt, Jr. of Boston and one quarter of his land in Leicester.
 4. To his daughter, Sarah Doubt, he gives a small house back of Byles' house in Love St.
 Also one half of his land in Spencer.
 5. He gives his apparel to his grandson, Samuel, and appoints his son John sole executor.

This Will was proved 2 Aug. 1774 and we may infer that his death took place in that year. His transactions in real estate in the town of Boston were confined to the northern section. On Bonner's map of Boston, dated 1723, at the extreme northern part is delineated "Hunt & White's Shipyard" and it was probably here that he industriously pursued his vocation. The estate in Love St. was purchased in 1764 of the widow of Dr. Hugh Kennedy. He bought 359 acres of land in Leicester and Spencer in 1735 and '44. Of his eleven children all died in infancy except the four mentioned in his will.
 He for several years held the office of Overseer of the Poor in Boston.

EBENEZER HUNT was baptized 13 Oct. 1695, admitted member of Second Church 17 Feb. 1716-7. In the quit-claim deed to John in 1724 he is styled "merchant of Boston" and his wife's name was Elizabeth Pitts (pub. Dec. 7, 1720). As there is no record of administration of his estate in Suffolk it is inferred that he removed from Boston.

 See Suffolk Deed XLI, 210; Second Church Records in Robbins' Hist. p. 256; Suffolk Deeds XXXVII, 81.

Emma was the second of nine children, whose mother died when Emma was thirteen years of age. Emma and the baby, Ruth, were reared by an aunt. Later, when the family moved to Dakota, Emma chose to remain in Minnesota with her own family and her betrothed, to whom she became engaged at the age of eighteen. She and Charles were married at his father's home. He was a farmer and railway telegrapher and lived at Redwood Falls and at Winona, Minn. In 1913, Charles bought a ranch in Torrington, Wyo., where the family lived several years. The move was necessitated by a case of "telegrapher's arm," which forced him to resign as station agent. From Torrington, the family moved to Mitchell, Nebr. where Charles returned to railroad work. In 1942, he sold his Mitchell property and moved to California to be near the family of his only child. Within twelve days after settling in Los Angeles, at the age of sixty-eight, he qualified as telegrapher with the Santa Fe Railroad, to help in World War II. He was still working at seventy. Note: The annotator welcomes corrections and additions to this study of the census. No one realizes more deeply the inaccuracies and inconsistencies of the early censuses and the difficulties of absolutely identifying each John Doe on the list. Without diminishing the credit to Mrs. Kresge for her painstaking work, it is only possible to supply such full notes because Mr. Burton, fifty years ago, collected every available item bearing on the early history of his city and county, particularly the early church records of the French settlers. When Mrs. K. was "gently chided" because Ezra Younglove (p. 19, Vol. XII) could not likely have been the father of six children at the age of 22 years, she brought proof that this very young man had acquired a ready-made family by marrying a slightly older widow. Fact is often stranger than fiction. ---Editor.

RECORD OF NEW YORK MARRIAGES 1839 - 1865
 Performed by the Rev. Abel Haskell
 Contributed by Mrs. Wm. C. Clark, Elkins Park. Pa.

The Rev. Abel Haskell was born in Belchertown, Mass., May 7, 1809. He was eighth in descent from William Haskell, a Church-warden, in the parish of Charlton-Musgrave, Somerset, England, in 1627. He died in 1630. His widow married one John Stone who brought his wife and the Haskell children to Salem, Mass. in 1636.

Roger, the eldest son, born 1613 / 14, was the ancestor of Abel Haskell. He married Elizabeth Hardy and died in Beverly, Mass. 1657.

William Haskell, son of Roger and Elizabeth Haskell was born at Beverly, Mass. 1646 and married Miriam Hill of Salem, Mass. 1679.

John Haskell eldest son of William and Miriam, born Beverly, Mass., married Emme Tailer 1704. He was born 1679.

John Haskell, son of John and Emme, was born Manchester, Mas. 1722 and married at Ipswich, Mass. in 1748, Eunice Low.

Jeremiah Haskell, son of John and Eunice, was born 1753 and married Hannah Newell, Dudley Mass., in 1777. He was ordained a Baptist preacher in 1786 and was a soldier in the Revolution. He died in 1808.

Eli Haskell, son of Jeremiah and Hannah, was born 1783 in Dudley, Mass., and married Elizabeth Tower of Sudbury, Mass. in 1808. He removed from Belchertown, Mass. to Bristol, Ontario Co., New York about 1815. In 1818 he united with the Baptist church and soon afterward felt the call to preach the Gospel, and from 1820 until his death in 1855, was a successful preacher and pastor. He helped the struggling church at Canandaigua to become a going concern, and built churches in Naples and Bristol.

Abel, eldest son of Eli and Elizabeth, was born in Belchertown and married Esther Green at Jerusalem, Yates Co., N.Y. 1838. At the age of fifteen Abel Haskell decided that he wanted to become a minister and walked ten miles each day to and from Canandaigua Academy until he completed his preparatory course. He graduated from the Theological Seminary at Hamilton, N.Y. in 1838. From that time until his death in 1865 he served five churches, Middlesex, Geneva, Victory, Yates and Penfield.

His record shows him to be truly a good man, an able preacher and successful pastor. He was a natural student and though the amount of study and reading he accomplished was enormous, he neglected nothing in the way of pastoral work. The cause of ministerial education was dear to him, and he pled with young men to make every sacrifice to secure a collegiate course before attending Theological Seminary.

CORRECTION. Detroit Society for Genealogical Research Magazine, Vol. 12, No. 4, p. 99. In the "Sherraden Family Records" contributed by Mrs. F. A. Tiedgen, the date of the birth of Anner Lawrence should be Oct. 6, 1803 instead of Oct. 6, 1893.

IN MEMORY A lifetime of serving and saving others culminated most sadly when Blanche Reed Trone, on vacation, died in the Noronic holocaust on Sept. 17, 1949. While she had been a member of our society for two years her professional duties as a nurse prevented frequent attendance at the meetings. Blanche Reed was born to parents Dora Reed and Anna Wiley on July 13, 1897 in Belmont Co. Ohio. She came to Detroit from Tulsa, Okla, some twenty-five years ago and her first job was at Brunk's Hospital. For the last ten years she has been with the Detroit Tuberculosis Hospital. Her church membership was in The Church of the Incarnation in Detroit. The funeral was held in Northville and burial was in Oakland Hills Memorial Gardens. She is survived by children, Roland Mathew Trone and Olive Blanche Trone, sisters Mary and Helen of Northville, Mich., and brothers Charles and Hollice of Plymouth, Mich. and Paul of Malaga, Ohio.

NOTES OF THE SOCIETY

Reports of vacations are still coming in. . . Virginia Everham met fourth cousins in Nova Scotia. . . Miss Alice Serrell of the Black & White Cow, did some looking in Pennsylvania. Miss Kellogg was in New Jersey when she got the card announcing that she would conduct the work-shop on Connecticut, and drove hard to get back to Detroit in time. . . Mr. McFee got a big flutter in the Historical Library in Albany when he looked up and saw OUR magazine on the shelf. . . But Miss Dudley got the biggest thrill of all when she returned from her vacation and found, right there in Burton, the N.Y. Gen. & Biog. Record with a full account of her ancestor, Baron de Poellnitz. . . Mrs. McGlynn attended the Arseneau Family Reunion at St. Mary's Ill. in September. . . Mr. Fox spoke at the Nat'l Ass'n of Parliamentarians in Chicago in October.

The recent election report of the Huguenot Society of Michigan contains many familiar names. Mr. Marquis E. Shattuck is a vice-president, Mrs. Hoyt E. Whelan, recording secretary, Walter Glenn Scott treasurer, Mrs. Wm. M. Roberts registrar. . . John Harris, senior at Albion College, is on the College Religious Council, circulation manager of the College World and a vice-president of the Major Cole Ass'n. . . Leonard Beavis is back at the University of Michigan.

Mr. Bacon Vaughan has presented the society with a manuscript representing several years work among original documents. It is "History of the Denis de Laronde Family, from the 15th to 20th Century." . . Mrs. Hoyt Whelan has a long, well-written account of the Lee family in the American Genealogist for October. . . Mrs. Corliss has finished copying the 1870 census record of South Haven and Porter Twp., Van Buren Co., Mich., and has sent a copy for placement in Burton. She has also copied the death records of South Haven from 1898 to the present. . . During her convalescence Mrs. Stutsman made a several-years index of the magazine of the California Sons of the Revolution for Burton. . . Among those seen at the Michigan Series were; Miss Ladd, Miss Krum, Mrs. McGlynn and Miss Hathaway.

Glad to see Mrs. Keeler, over from Holland for a two day search in Burton. . . Sad coincidence - Mrs. Blanch Reed Trone and Mr. Elbert Boyd, who are both memorialized in this magazine, were both Devol descendants. Mr. Boyd had searched and written much on the family and Mrs. Trone was anxious to learn more about her connection with it. . . We send our sympathy to our member Mrs. Harry D. Pritchard of Grand Rapids, who lost her son, Major Kent Barton Pritchard of the U. S. Air Force on Oct. 22. . . Also we have the sad news of the death of one of our charter members, Mrs. George H. Wilcox, who died Nov. 11, at Plymouth. We will bring more details of this in our next magazine.

Stencil-cutting for the ten-year index is not only well begun but is actually half done. . . While this magazine generally goes in for compactness and compression in genealogies, we like to bring occasionally a family history produced primarily for the family circle. Such a history will be infinitely more interesting and informing if some care is taken to present a great deal of historical background. In other words, clothe a man in his time and his social setting and he will be remembered far longer than if you give him only a name and some dates. Dr. Everett's letter to his cousins is such an example.

GLEANED FROM THE WORKSHOPS. Mrs. O. A. Crosby, Huntingdon Woods, offers to share data on Hinckley and Breed families. . . Mr. Lee Ashley suggests that we take more pains to identify names of places that have now changed or been absorbed by other cities. . . Mrs. E. Gray Williams, unable to attend the Pennsylvania discussion, took time out to write up her experience of Pennsylvania research. . . Mrs. Sperry, kept at home by arthritis, also wrote about her problems. . . New members who didn't get their questions either asked or answered at the Pennsylvania work-shop, might call Mrs. Wentink and tell her. She will try to arrange a consultation with one of the old hands.
